THEY WANT THE NINTH.

The Ninth Congressional District is the one ewe lamb of the Republicans in Virginia. Democracy's lecherous eye is longingly seeking its possession. Before the Congressional election in 1906 the Democratic press and leaders proclaimed it the duty of the organization and of all the rank and file of the party to concentrate their efforts upon the Ninth, with the strong hope of wresting it from the Republicans. When the Democrats of the district met in convention at Bristol to nominate a candidate for Congress, J. Taylor Ellyson, State chairman of the party, and the most malevolent political manipulator in Virginia, was present to encourage a nomination. He promised the convention and its nominee that a concentrated effort would be made by the Virginia Democracy to take the district from the Republicans. It was understood that all the campaign fund for the State would be dedicated to this service; and we have no doubt but that it was done, as it was currently told and believed that many thousands of dollars were used in the strenuous effort to elect Bruce to Congress. But the moral and financial support of the solid Virginia Democracy, guided by the shadowy hand of Taylor Ellyson, were unavailing. Bruce was defeated and Democracy demoralized.

After the death of Colonel Slem, and when it became necessary to elect his successor in Congress last December, the Democrats declined to nominate a candidate and make another hopeless contest.

When the General Assembly met in January there was but one voice among the Democratic members as to the future treatment of the Ninth District, and that was: "We may as well abandon the Ninth District and turn it over to the Republicans." And in response to that sentiment, Craig county, heretofore a rock-ribbed stronghold of Democracy, was taken from the Ninth and attached to the Tenth District, to prevent it, if possible, from becoming Republican.

Then our esteemed, brilliant, but erratic contemporary, the Richmond News Leader, came boldly to the front and said to itself: "Let us see what we can do in the way of redeeming the Ninth and placing it again in the hands of the glorious (?) Democracy." To carry out that purpose our Richmond contemporary selected a veteran journalist, Mr. W. S. Copeland, recently with the Times-Dispatch, but now associated with the News Leader, and sent him to the Ninth to investigate and report on the political conditions here.

ENTER MR. COPELAND.

When the Children of Israel neared the "Land of Promise" they sent out spies to view the country and find out its resources. These spies returned to camp heavily laden with wonderful grapes and other delicious fruits, by these tokens proving the exceeding fruitfulness of the land that God had promised to the seed of Abraham. Their leaders then had no trouble in persuading the former doubting and timid hosts to enter the land of Canaan and fight for the possession of their future home.

The spy (we mean nothing offensive) that the News Leader sent out to the Ninth District has come and traversed our land on his tour of investigation, but he returns to his camp the bearer of evil tidings and presents to his people (the Democrats) only bitter "Dead Sea Fruit."

DISCOVERS WONDERFUL THINGS.

Mr. Copeland has discovered many strange and exasperating conditions in the politics of "The Great Southwest." Some of these things are true, while many are ridiculously fabulous. He landed first at Pulaski, and there learned for the first time why the Democrats had selected Rhea as their candidate for Congress. Some garrulous Democrat at Pulaski actually made Mr. Copeland believe that Rhea had been chosen, because of his wonderful personal courage, to intimidate General Walker, the fearless Republican candidate; and that Rhea had succeeded in doing so in a joint debate with Walker at Pulaski. To say that W. F. Rhea could ever have attempted to frighten James A. Walker or have reflected on his courage or integrity in his presence without being called promptly to account, is more absurd than to say that the night prowling jackal could frighten and run the lion, the "King of Beasts." But Mr. Copeland's mind was relieved of such impression when he traveled further into the district. When he reached Wytheville he was there told by a cussing Democrat how they all did things; and this same man said to Mr. Copeland: "What's the use attacking Rhea when we are all guilty?" Then, when Mr. Copeland journeyed further on he began to find out the true reason why Rhea had been selected as the Democratic candidate—that was because he was an unscrupulous politician and had unlimited capacity for finding and using men who could square their consciences to any political crime. Mr. Copeland at Gate City found out a little about the "Scott County Ballot," that knowledge coming from a Democratic source. But he saw the forged and falsified returns from certain precincts in Scott county, by which, with similar work in other counties, a bold movement was made to rob Colonel Slem of the certificate of election to which he was entitled.

With his eyes opened, Mr. Copeland, responding to the question of a correspondent of the Roanoke Times: "Can you suggest a man likely to take Judge Rhea's place," said:

"The man who takes Judge Rhea's place must be a man of courage and aggressiveness, but he must be clean, or he will fail."

And the News Leader editorially said:

"We observe in some of the newspapers a card from some man who wants to know who will take Judge Rhea's place and make the kind of fight he did in the Ninth District. To which we answer, 'we devoutly hope, nobody.'"

Evidently Mr. Copeland and the News Leader now know why Rhea was made the Democratic candidate for Congress.

NOT A VENAL ELECTORATE.

The News Leader correspondent made another shocking discovery while at Wytheville. The information was given by a self-confessed Democratic corruptionist, who didn't buy votes himself but who contributes largely from his ample fortune to a campaign fund which he declared was always used to corrupt the electorate. He was told by this "Be G—d Sir" Democrat that a large per cent. of the voters of the Ninth District solicit bribes, and that votes are trafficked in by both Republicans and Democrats with as much equanimity as our graziers show when buying and selling their cattle. When Mr. Copeland arrived in other communities in the district and heard other fervid Democrats talk about the venal vote he became impressed with the belief that about forty per cent. of the electorate is purchasable. He has permitted his brain-steam Democratic informants to impose dreadfully upon his fertile credulity.

We deny that the poor voters of the Ninth District are largely bribe-seekers or bribe-takers. They are nearly all Republicans, and would turn with humiliation from a bribe offered by a Republican friend and scorn an offer made by a Democratic foe. They are as steadfast in their political convictions as is Mr. Copeland, whose Democratic faith is built upon the principle of eternal hate to the name, Republican.

Wherever there is a very large electorate there will necessarily be some who will sell their votes. This disposition, however, is not confined to the poor and illiterate voters of the Ninth District, but is more general in certain other sections, in what Mr. Copeland may claim to be the most intelligent portions of Virginia. We respectfully direct his attention to the Eighth Congressional District, where the Democratic newspapers boldly charged that at a Democratic primary to nominate a candidate for Congress last year there was widespread bribery practiced in Culpeper county. One of the candidates, Judge Nicol, called for an investigation, but the matter was hushed up. We also respectfully direct his attention to the frequent charges of corruption and fraud in Democratic primaries held in Richmond, Norfolk and other places in the eastern part of the State. There may be a venal vote in the Ninth, but there is not a precinct out here that can be bought for twenty-five dollars, as was an entire precinct in the city of Richmond at a Democratic primary held not very long ago. Mr. Copeland and the News Leader are, no doubt, sincere in their desire to reform the political morals of the Ninth District, but it would be more becoming in them to first engage in home mission work, in their own political household, before they cry aloud in dismay at a grossly exaggerated immoral condition of Republicanism in this benighted section.

LAST—THE POLL TAX.

The mission of the News Leader has laid peculiar stress upon the way the Republicans in this district have been paying their poll taxes. His information as to this has come, like the rest, almost entirely from Democratic sources. And he declares that what was intended to be a reformatory scheme by the Democrats has been their undoing, because of the way in which the Republicans have utilized it for their benefit. Mr. Copeland is strongly of opinion, that though the Republicans are not violating the law they are transgressing morality with the methods they are using to induce Republican voters to pay their poll taxes and to preserve their suffrage rights. He bases his conclusions on exaggerated stories told by Democrats and his own conception of the purpose of the partisans who devised the existing poll tax qualification for voting. When it was placed in the Constitution it was falsely announced to be a revenue measure for the benefit of the public free schools. Then the Republicans knew that the principal purpose of the poll tax iniquity was to place an almost insurmountable barrier between the poor illiterate man and the ballot box. The eagerness with which Democratic politicians and newspapers are now calling for a rigid, inequitable construction of the provisions for the manner of paying poll taxes, to the disadvantage of the humble voter, is proof conclusive of the evil intention of the measure. The Republicans have a right to believe and they do believe that such was its intention. The Democrat who doubts it must either be a blind partisan or a dullard. Holding from the beginning this, now proved, accurate estimate of the true character and intention of the poll tax qualification for voting, the Republicans of the Ninth District determined to use every means permitted by the law to get their voters qualified. So, for the Congressional election of 1904 they went earnestly to work, as did the Democrats, to accomplish that end. The Democratic newspapers began to howl when they found that all the Republicans were putting on their armor and were ready to battle for a priceless ballot for American freemen. These Democratic howlers said the law was being violated, but when they found that Mr. Wyso's managers were working on the same lines as were the Republicans they ceased to howl. After the election of 1904 was over, Mr. Wyso published a manly letter, in which he acquitted the Republicans of the district of all legal or moral intentional wrong. He was a member of the Constitutional Convention, helped to frame the suffrage laws and was a member of the revision committee. Who was better qualified than he to interpret the meaning of the poll tax law? Here is what he said in his letter:

"The only safeguard in the constitution against one man paying poll tax for another is the six months' provision. The reason for this provision was that it was thought a man would hesitate risking his money six months with the view of influencing the vote of another. It is true the constitution provides that the voter shall personally pay his taxes. But this amounts to little or nothing. The constitution does not forbid a man lending or giving another the money with which to pay his poll taxes. A loan or gift makes money the absolute property of the recipient, and if he uses it in paying his taxes, he personally pays them. Of course a pretended loan or gift, made to corrupt and purchase the voter, is against the constitution and does not qualify the voter, but here we are met with a practical difficulty. Who is to find this out? When you challenge such a voter he will say he paid his own taxes and it will be very difficult to gain his word."

After this honest and unanswerable interpretation of the clause in the Constitution which provides for the prepayment of poll taxes as a qualification for voting, the Republicans felt not only safe but justified in what they were doing. But the Democrats were not satisfied. They were grievously disappointed, because the insidious scheme had not barred Republicans from the polls and made Democracy supreme in the Ninth. Another howl was made about the "due bill," a sample of which Mr. Copeland has made prominent in the columns of the News Leader. In Russell county, Republicans were dragged into the circuit court to defend the "due bill," and Judge Hutton, a Democratic, honest judge, decided that the "due bill" was a perfectly legal transaction, and his opinion sustained that of Mr. Wyso. This gentleman (Mr. Wyso) has been held up by the News Leader as an exemplar of honest politics. Why not accept his opinion, rather than that of disappointed office-seekers, Democrats who have been discounted by the people?

We urge the Republicans of the Ninth District and of all the districts in Virginia to pay their poll taxes personally, and to preserve their right to vote. If, however, by any unfortunate circumstance, they cannot raise the necessary sum, let them borrow the amount from their neighbor, their friend. If the neighbor is a man with a true heart, he will loan the needed sum. Yea, if necessary, he will give it. None but the most callous-hearted will find any wrong in this. You have a right to send the money by an agent, your friend, to the county treasurer, or you can make the payment through the mails. Any court that will say that such is not a legal personal payment, will stultify itself and win the scorn of all honest judicial tribunals. But when it is possible to do so, pay your poll taxes in physical person.

Mistletoe is Safe for the Present

Maidens—young and old—and young men whose fancy, we are told, "lightly turns to love" in the springtime, cannot be expected to rise in their place and heap blessings on the devoted head of Congressman Burleson, he of the Lone Star State, who now stands before the world as the friend of the forests, but the implacable foe of that old fashioned custom which ordained that a sprig of mistletoe is the proper thing at Christmas-time to warm the hearts of the young folks.

The Texas statesman spoke upon the floor of the house of representatives Monday in advocacy of an investigation of the best means for preventing the "ravages of the mistletoe," and offered an amendment to the agricultural appropriation bill to that effect. The amendment was lost, but not until some sprightly repartee had passed between Mr. Burleson and other members of the house. Mr. Gaines of Tennessee wanted to know if the mistletoe referred to was that about which so many tender memories cluster. He was assured that it was. Then some one wished to know if Mr. Burleson was married or single.

A demand on the part of Mr. Olmsted of Pennsylvania, to know if it was the purpose of the amendment to abolish the mistletoe in leap year, brought this statement from the gentleman from Texas:

"I understand that there are many tender memories that cluster around this pest. It is, however, not a sentimental age. We are practical men, and I am a fanatical man, and it is in the interests of the forests of the country that I offer this amendment."

If Mr. Burleson has any idea of keeping his seat in congress it is probable that he will be called upon to do some strenuous explaining to the young men of his district why he regards the mistletoe as a pest and wishes to do away with a custom very dear to a great many people.—Ex.

"Mashing" in Kansas City.

(Louisville Courier-Journal.)

A Kansas Citizen who entered a restaurant late in the evening and addressed the girl cashier as "honey" received five or six bullets in his unsuspecting anatomy before he could back away from the desk. His friends contend that he was habitually courteous and merely meant to be polite, but that his good intentions were misconstrued as attentions. Public opinion seems, however, to uphold the girl cashier. The incident naturally causes speculation as how a gentleman in Kansas City must demean himself in the presence of a young woman to whom has not had the pleasure of being formally introduced.

If a man who is habitually polite is shot six times for employing his accustomed term of salutation—purely from force of habit—it is fair to infer that a man rising from his seat in a street car and offering it to a fair unknown might be shot once for proposing to the young woman that she should incur the obligation, twice if he should elaborate the insult by removing his hat and three times if he should offer the seat with a smiling countenance. A gentleman habitually polite might be shot in the foot for offering an unknown young woman an umbrella in a rainstorm, or stabbed with a hatpin for removing his hat in an elevator. Visitors in Kansas City should keep these things in mind. To be forewarned is to be forearmed. Law and public opinion give to every girl the right of self defense when attacked by a masher and custom grants considerable latitude in the matter of deciding such points as when defensive tactics should be employed and how far they may be carried. It is well when in Kansas City to avoid sedulously not only the evil of "mashing," but also the appearance of it.

The Rotator, is the Name of a Perfect Nickel Alarm Clock.

Whether you are required to report for work "On the minute" or a person of leisure, a good alarm clock is often a necessity. The Rotator is dependable and is recommended to both light and sound sleepers as positively the safest and surest guarantee of being aroused at the time desired.

Ultra sound sleepers, after using the common, continuous alarm clock a short time, found that the alarm awakens them momentarily only, and they again lapse into slumber, the alarm having failed of its purpose. The alternate noise and silence of the "Rotator" is so irritating in its effect and so persistent in keeping at it that it never fails of its object.

The retail price of the clock is $2.50. On account of the universal depression, the manufacturer was compelled to have ready money, and "The Philadelphia Press" made an arrangement direct with him that enables them to offer "The Press" Daily, one whole year, and one of the "Rotators," delivered at your door, both for four dollars and twenty-five cents.

The saving is yours, but hurry, as the demand is greater than the supply.

Death Was on His Heels.

Jessie P. Morris of Skipper, Va., had a close call in the spring of 1906. He says: "An attack of pneumonia left me so weak and with such a dreadful cough that my friends declared consumption and death was on my heels. When I was persuaded to try Dr. King's New Discovery, it helped me immediately, and after taking two and a half bottles I was a well man again. I found out that New Discovery is the best remedy for coughs and lung disease in all the world." Sold under guarantee at John E. Jackson's drug store. 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free.

In a German mine recently a bore was being sunk, and at a depth of almost a thousand feet the hardened end of the steel bit broke off. To get the broken piece of steel out, a soft bar, five feet long and about three inches in diameter, was surrounded by a single winding of india rubber-covered wire. It was then magnetized and let down the hole, and raised the steel to the surface without further trouble.

"Health Coffee" is really the closest Coffee Imitation ever yet produced. This clever Coffee substitute was recently produced by Dr. Shoop of Racine, Wis. Not a grain of real Coffee is in either. Dr. Shoop's Health Coffee is made from pure toasted grains, with malt, nuts, etc. Really it would fool an expert—who might drink it for Coffee. No 20 or 30 minutes tedious boiling. "Made in a minute" says the doctor. Sold by Harrison, Barnes & Co.

An electrical instrument, recently invented for avoiding the pain incident to the extraction of teeth has attracted considerable attention. Briefly, it consists of adjustable prongs, carrying buttons. The buttons are placed on the face over the nerves leading from the teeth to the brain, and a circuit is established the moment the extracting instrument touches the tooth.

He Got What He Needed

"Nine years ago it looked as if my time had come," says Mr. C. Farthing, of Mill Creek, Ind. Ter. "I was so run down that life hung on a very slender thread. It was then my druggist recommended Electric Bitters. I bought a bottle and I got what I needed—strength. I had one foot in the grave, but Electric Bitters put it back on the turn again, and I've been well ever since." Sold under guarantee at John E. Jackson's drug store. 50c.

Sin Against Our Eyes.

(The Herald.)

The first offence against the eyes is reading with a poor light. This requires the ciliary muscle to do extra work to sharpen sight. It applies to dim lights, twilight, sitting too far from the light.

The second offence is one of exposure—stooping or lying down congests the eye, besides requiring unnatural work of the eye muscles.

Reading on trains is our third offence, the motion causing such frequent changes of focus and position as to tax the muscles of accommodation as well as the muscles of fixation.

Reading without needed glasses or with badly fitted ones is the last. Eye-strain is certainly a factor in producing disease of every part of the eye. Old age is the time of retribution for those who have sinned against their eyes.

RECIPE FOR PIE CRUST.

Care in Its Preparation is a Highly Important Matter.

Pastry flour made by the old process of grinding is usually considered best for pastry, but any good flour will answer. For the shortening, butter and lard, half and half, is best, though clarified drippings of beef, chicken or pork may be utilized. To make a good plain pie crust, allow for each pie that is to have two crusts a cupful cup sifted flour, a scant half cup shortening, a saltspoonful each salt and baking powder, and enough cold water to mix stiff.

Have all ingredients and utensils cold. Sift together flour, salt and baking powder. Then cut in the lard or butter with the tips of the fingers, until the flour feels "mealy." Add cold water a little at a time, to mix to a stiff dough, toss out on a lightly floured molding board and pat down to about half an inch in thickness. Flour the rolling pin, then with a light, deft touch roll out the crust into an oblong sheet. Put the butter on in little dashes here and there, sprinkle lightly with flour, roll over and over, turn half around, pat out and roll again. Then roll over and over like a jelly roll and slide in the center. If there is time, set these in the ice chest, each piece turned on end with the rings of pastry on top.

When hard and chilled, take out and roll one piece to fit the plate with an inch to spare. Double over, lift lightly and lay in the tin. Press down the center so there will be no air bubbles and let the edge of the crust come just to the edge of the plate. Brush the rim with cold water and dust the bottom crust lightly with the fingers dipped in flour or brush with the white of an egg to prevent soaking.

Roll out some of the paste into a strip half an inch wide and place on the edge. Turn in the filling and if an upper crust is to be used, as in the case of a mince or apple pie, wet the rim again before putting on the upper crust. Roll out the latter in the same way as the under.

Fold over and make several fancy shapes in the center to allow for the escape of steam, then lift onto the pie. Press the edges of the crust lightly but closely together and push the two crusts away from the edge of the plate which gives them a chance to expand. Bake in a moderate oven.

PRESERVED APPLES ARE GOOD.

How They May Be Made Ready for Immediate Use.

Fare and core as many apples as will cover the bottom of a preserve kettle, eight or nine large ones will fill a medium sized dish. Allow three-quarters of a pound of sugar to each pound of fruit.

Make a rich sirup, when it boils clear drop in the apples and the peel of a lemon cut thin. They should boil slowly, turning them over occasionally; if they are good they will keep their shape and look transparent.

About three-quarters of an hour will be long enough to cook them, when they look yellow and clear they are done.

Lift them into a dish sufficiently deep to hold the juice. When the fruit is done let the sirup boil a few minutes longer then pour it over the apples.

Ornament with a preserved green-gate on the top of each apple. Blanch sweet almonds and place them in a circle around the gage.

To Keep the Closet Door Shut.

I had tried all sorts of ways to induce my son to make an effort to keep the closet door shut. Finally, he himself suggested that I hang on the outside of the door his favorite picture, the one he always wishes to see when he enters the room. It hurts him so much to see the picture turned to the wall that he is fast learning to keep the door closed.—Good Housekeeping.

RECIPE FOR RHEUMATISM.

Directions to Prepare Simple, Yet Remarkable Home Mixture.

There is so much Rheumatism here in our neighborhood now that the following advice by an eminent authority, who writes for readers of a large Eastern daily paper, will be highly appreciated by those who suffer:

Get from any good pharmacy one-half ounce Fluid Extract Dandelion, one ounce Compound Kargon, three ounces of Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla. Shake these well in a bottle and take in teaspoonful doses after each meal and at bedtime; also drink plenty of good water.

It is claimed that there are few victims of this dread and torturous disease who will fail to find ready relief in this simple home-made mixture, and in most cases a permanent cure is the result.

This simple recipe is said to strengthen and cleanse the eliminative tissues of the Kidneys, so that they can filter and strain from the blood and system the poisons, acids and waste matter, which cause not only Rheumatism, but numerous other diseases. Every man or woman here who feels that their kidneys are not healthy and active, or who suffers from any urinary trouble whatever, should not hesitate to make up this mixture, as it is certain to do much good, and may save you from much misery and suffering after awhile.

Our home druggists say they will either supply the ingredients or mix the prescription ready to take if our readers ask them.

According to M. Abrams, the best telephone does not transmit to the ear more than one-thousandth part of the energy which it receives from the line.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that Contain Mercury.

As mercury will slowly destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

That languid, lifeless feeling that comes with spring and early summer, can be quickly changed to a feeling of buoyancy and energy by the judicious use of Dr. Shoop's Restorative.

The Restorative is a genuine tonic to tired, run down nerves and but a few doses are needed to satisfy the user that Dr. Shoop's Restorative is actually reaching that tired spot. The indoor life of winter nearly always leads to sluggish bowels and to sluggish circulation in general. The customary lack of exercise and outdoor air ties up the liver, stagnates the kidneys and oftentimes weakens the Heart's action. Use Dr. Shoop's Restorative a few weeks and all will be changed. A few days test will tell you that you are using the right remedy. You will easily and surely note the change from day to day. Sold by John E. Jackson.
